

Attract, Engage and Retain Your Best Employees

Easily offer a student loan benefit program with BenefitEd

Much of today's workforce is faced with student loan debt. Employers can help their employees pay off that debt with a new innovative benefit. With a student loan repayment program, employers contribute funds to be paid directly toward employees' student loans as a part of their benefits package. Reducing an employee's student loan debt directly improves their financial situation - and reduces the stress created by debt.

The case for student loan repayment:

71%

of students graduating from four-year colleges have student loan debt<sup>1</sup>

70%

of borrowers have delayed saving for retirement due to their student loan debt<sup>2</sup>

Three out of four job seekers believe their choice to take a job would be considerably affected based on an employer's willingness to offer a student loan repayment program<sup>4</sup>

Among companies that have implemented loan repayment as a benefit:

- 44% believe the benefit has improved employee morale<sup>3</sup>
- 41% believe the benefit has improved recruitment<sup>3</sup>
- 38% believe the benefit has improved retention<sup>3</sup>

Student loan repayment has three direct benefits:

Recruitment

Retention

Engagement

The BenefitEd Effect

Including BenefitEd in your benefits package does more than give your company a competitive edge. Helping employees lower their debt at a quicker pace has an immediate positive outcome on a person's financial wellness, which pays dividends in other areas. You will spend less time recruiting and training employees and increase productivity due to fewer vacant positions.

Here are two implementation examples that show the positive effects BenefitEd can have on your workforce:

Industry	Company A	Company B
Total Employees	500	1,000
